SOCIAL MEDIA POST

Children's Tuition Fund is Promoting Private School Education Scholarships at the COST Annual Meeting in St. Louis, Missouri to advocate for increased support of private school education through tax-credit scholarships.

Our CTF representatives are attending the COST event to engage with business leaders and encourage them to donate their state tax liability to fund private school scholarships through tax-credit programs.

James Elliott, Director at Children's Tuition Fund, shared his enthusiasm for the program's mission and the opportunity to connect with COST attendees:

“We love the work of the Children’s Tuition Fund—helping families afford and access a Christian education. What an incredible opportunity to partner with businesses at the COST event and expand the reach of our scholarship programs!”

The Children's Tuition Fund remains dedicated to providing life-changing educational opportunities for children through the generosity of donors and communities. Attendees of the COST Annual Meeting are invited to visit the CTF table to learn more about supporting private school education through tax-credit scholarships.
